Pretty Bedroom Curtain Set—American Made Lingerie Charming—Embroidered Lingerie Coming More in Favor—Aster Luncheon Described.

FOR THE BEDROOM CURTAINS.

One pretty curtain set seen at a certain house had a base and one one-half inches wide of pale yellow satin all around the edge and just inside of that was a narrow lace insertion. The oblong pin cushion cover was treated in the same way, and both had a yellow satin cover underneath. The same idea could be carried out in any shade, for a good saten launders well.

LATEST LINGERIE.

Crepe Very Dainty.

Whatever our view may be, we can surely find charming American-made lingerie in the shops, and we can have it made according to American patterns and by American dress-makers or seamstresses so that it equals at least the French lingerie.

The figured crepe nightgowns are especially dainty. They are made of cotton crepe figured with tiny pink or blue flowers. Some of them have a little picot edge crocheted in the color of the flowers and buttonholes are run to make a high Empire waistline. Some of them have a binding of ribbon in the color of the flowers. Of course the color of the binding fades, but then so does the color of the figures, and with careful washing both can be made to retain their brightness for a long time.

One of the prettiest ways of finishing lingerie without much trouble is with a fold of net or heading, as it is called, with the ribbon run through, and the color of course, showing. These net headings can be used around the neck opening, at the edge of the sleeves and around the waistline.

Embroidery in Favor.

This is to be a season of much embroidery, and it would not be at all surprising if embroidered lingerie came into vogue again. Of course, it has not ever gone altogether out of vogue, chiefly because the French needlewoman considers a piece of lingerie incomplete unless it shows some fine embroidery. But with lace as a rival trimming and with the advent of crepe de chine and glove silk as lingerie materials, embroidery has not held much place in the world of underthings for a couple of years. We may go back to embroidered corset covers—only now, of course, we will call them under bodices, and cut them differently—petticoats, chemises and nightgowns.

The various silk weaves of glove silk and the like, and crepe de chine, have shown their worth for lingerie fabrics. They wear well and they launder well and they are usually more comfortable to wear than muslin, unless it be of the finest sort. And there are packages of colored powder covers—only now, of course, we will call them under bodices, and cut them differently—petticoats, chemises and nightgowns.

AN ASTER LUNCHEON.

Asters in their prime are a most decorative flower for table use. An aster luncheon given last year was so pretty that I am sure a description will be very welcome to our readers. As aster means a "star" the centerpiece was a star-shaped form made of tin; it was filled with delicate pink and lavender asters. Ribbons of pinkish lavender radiated to each place, where they were attached to star-shaped cards cut from lavender cardboard and the names were written in white ink. There was a corsage bouquet at each plate with a long violet headed pin. Pinkish lavender is a charming day-time color, but it does not light up well, so as the day was hot no artificial lights was used, not even candles. There was no attempt made to carry out the color scheme in the food, except candied violets were sprinkled over the top of the pineapple ice, which was served in tall glasses with pink lace paper doilies underneath; the plates were decorated in violets and the effect was lovely.

For diversion the hostess provided easy chairs, hammocks and cushions, a box of delicious candy, a bowl of iced tea made strong with lemon and pineapple juice, and then she proceeded to read aloud the most fascinating story, entitled, "The Ladyship's Elephant." It was time to depart all too soon, and one of the guests facetiously remarked that "she was so glad the hostess 'aster,' and every one was kind enough to forgive the horrible pun, as it voiced the sentiments of all present.

BREWER CAUGHT IN AN ATTEMPT TO SAW OUT OF PRISON

Salt Lake, Oct. 1.—For the second time within six weeks Harry Brewer, convicted murderer of Eugene Allen in Bingham, April 15, 1914, has been prevented from sawing his way to freedom from the state prison by the watchfulness of the guards of that institution. In the midst of the suppressed excitement at the prison yesterday, when word was received of the Hillstrom reprieve, Brewer was seen to act in a manner which the guard believed to be suspicious.

A few minutes later he was led from his cell, which is in the same corridor as that of Hillstrom, and guards discovered on the ceiling the outline of the hole which the man was cutting through the steel. The hole, had it been completed, would have been large enough to have allowed Brewer to crawl through.

Find Razor Blades. Further search of Brewer's cell revealed three safety razor blades which had been fashioned into saws. Brewer had used the steel filings mixed with dough to conceal the marks which he had made in cutting the hole.

Immediately after the discovery Brewer was taken before Warden Pratt and was told that another attempt on his part to escape would result in his being placed in irons and put into solitary confinement.

Brewer's previous attempt to escape was discovered on August 10 last, when a hole, partially cut through the steel under the convict's cot, was discovered. Ever since that time officials of the prison have sought two accomplices who are believed to have been working with Brewer from the "outside."

Plot Called for Auto. The plot at that time involved a "getaway" over the walls and into an automobile which was to have been waiting in violets and the effect was lovely.

However, it is not so much Brewer's attempts to escape that is worrying the prison officials as the manner in which he secured the razor blades from which he had fashioned the saws. No one has been allowed to visit Brewer since his last attempt, and but few have visited any of the prisoners in the corridor in which murderers are confined.

The plot to escape which was unearthed yesterday is the fourth in which Brewer has been concerned since his arrest for the Allen murder. While confined in the county jail awaiting trial for the murder, Brewer smuggled letters to accomplices and outlined to them how it would be possible for him to escape from the county jail.

Another Attempt Frustrated. One of the letters was intercepted by Jailor George Cleveland and the plot was frustrated. Brewer and his alleged accomplice, Frank DePretto, were hastily removed to the state prison.

About sixty days ago the prison officials were given information of the second plot hatched by Brewer. He was at that time consigned to what is known as the second-grade cell-house. He was then taken to the first grade cellhouse, where murderers and other prisoners considered dangerous are kept in semi-solitary confinement.

Brewer has a nationwide reputation as a cracksmen and was the leader of a daring band of thieves who operated in Washington, Oregon, Idaho, Montana and Utah.

Brewer and DePretto were convicted of the murder of Eugene Allen in Bingham during an attempt to rob the Highland Boy store, of which Allen was the manager. DePretto was arrested at Thompson's Falls, Mont., and Brewer later at Memphis. Both men were convicted in the Third district court and the cases were appealed to the supreme court. DePretto's case is expected to reach that tribunal in the October term and Brewer's during the December term.

OFFICERS OF THE W. C. T. U. ELECTED

Mount Pleasant, Sept. 30.—The convention of the state organization of the W. C. T. U. closed here today with the election of officers. The election followed the completion of the set program, which included many speeches. National-wide prohibition was advocated by the speakers, who expressed their belief that a national enactment would soon be put into force. The election resulted in the selection of Mrs. Lulu Shepard of Salt Lake as president; Mrs. C. A. Walker of Salt Lake, first vice president; Mrs. Winifred Jensen of Mount Pleasant, second vice president, Mrs. Leota S. Kennedy of Ogden, corresponding secretary; Emma P. Pratt of Salt Lake, recording secretary; Mrs. C. A. Root of Salt Lake, assistant recording secretary; Mrs. Q. R. Pratt of Ogden, treasurer; Mrs. Leota Kennedy of Ogden, secretary of the young people's board; Mrs. Winifred Jensen of Mount Pleasant, secretary of the Loyal Temperance league.

STRIVING FOR AN AGREEMENT. Logan, Sept. 30.—The political situation here seems to be much mixed just at present. The Betterment league is now in the field and several efforts have been made to get at the matter of naming an opposition ticket. An effort has been made to have the three parties here unite in putting up a ticket, but it failed because none of the chairmen would agree to it. Yesterday morning the announcement was made by Chairman Harris of the Republican city committee that a mass convention of Republicans will be called for next Monday evening.

at which time the advisability of placing a ticket in the field will be considered, and, if it is agreed to name a ticket, it will be selected at that time. Chairman Blair of the Democratic committee meets with his committee this evening and it will then be determined what action the Democrats will take.

SWEDISH LINE BUYS THE POTSDAM

Stockholm, Oct. 1, via London, 11:30 a. m.—The Swedish-American steamship line which since its formation a year ago, has been unable to operate because it has had no ships, has purchased the Holland-America liner Potsdam, which for years has been in service between New York and Dutch ports.
